

FIERCE ATTACK ON SENATOR BAILEY

Texas Democrat Offered Advice to Arizona Constitutional Convention.

GOVERNOR ALSO BERATED

Resolution in the Case of the Latter. However, Was Beaten When Voted Upon.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 7.—The "conservative" made a supreme effort to eliminate the recall from the Arizona constitution today, but failed. The early session was marked by an attack on United States Senator Bailey and Governor Sloan on the Democratic side of the house. Delegate Webb of Graham county had received a telegram from Senator Bailey in reply to one inviting him to the probable effect of writing into the constitution the initiative, the referendum and recall and including the application of the latter principle to the judiciary.

Senator Bailey's reply was read to the convention and stated in effect that it would be inadvisable to write anything "debatable" into the constitution as it might "provoke the opposition of the President and invite the disapproval of Congress."

Attack on Bailey.
Delegate Parsons of Cochise county launched a vigorous attack on Senator Bailey. He said that if the country had been taken with a fine tooth

GIN FOR THE KIDNEYS

Gin is one of the oldest known remedies for kidney and bladder troubles, especially when used in the following formula: "Six ounces good pure gin; half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Muxa compound. Any druggist can supply or mix these ingredients. Shake well each time and take in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bed time.

This is the most effective remedy known for the quick relief of kidney and bladder disorders. Such symptoms as backache, frequent or highly colored urine, rheumatic pains in the groin ought to have prompt attention to prevent Bright's disease or diabetes.

comb, there could not have been found a more appropriate persons from whom to obtain the desired answer. Senator Bailey, he declared, was not in reality a Democrat.
Delegate Cuniff of Yavapai, while believing the Texas senator to be the ablest man in the Senate, said he would disregard Mr. Bailey's advice. A statement alleged to have been made by Governor Sloan of Arizona in Washington, to the effect that his belief was that the constitution would not be adopted by the people of Arizona, was deplored in a resolution, which stated that this attitude was presumptuous on the part of the governor, as not a single section of the constitution had been finally adopted when the alleged statement was made, and that such language from the governor was calculated to prejudice the President and Congress against statehood.

Resolution Voted Down.
The resolution was unanimously voted down, however, in the belief that the governor might have been misquoted.

A motion to make mandatory the passage of the recall by the legislature was defeated, 15 to 31. An amendment making it a matter of separate submission met a like fate, 17 to 33, and another eliminating the judiciary was beaten, 15 to 32.
The recall was then adopted on final vote, 38 to 9, eight Republicans and Tullih, Democrat, voting against it.

The text of the telegram sent by Senator Bailey follows:
"Washington, D. C.—Your telegram to Gainsville forwarded here. The provisions specified are apt to provoke the opposition of the President and might invite the disapproval of Congress. I am sincerely anxious to see Arizona admitted to the Union and I advise our friends there to adopt a constitution free from all debatable provisions so as to secure statehood without delay. After becoming a state the people of Arizona can then adopt such amendments to her constitution as the people desire without consulting anybody or incurring the risk of being kept in a territorial condition."
(Signed) "J. W. BAILEY."

Governor Sloan's Opinion.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Governor Sloan of Arizona, who called on President Taft today to tell him of the work of the constitutional convention, said the proposed constitution is about "the worst affair ever turned out and objectionable to all classes."

VAN STEUBEN GIVEN PLACE WITH HISTORIC FOREIGNERS

rank and file of the revolutionary army—discipline and organization.

Hogan at Valley Forge.

"He began his desperate task with the army at Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-78, and as early as May of '78 his influence for good was manifest in the battle of Monmouth in the other campaigns of that year. Alexander Hamilton, an accomplished soldier, testified to the marvelous effect of Von Steuben's discipline on the action of the American soldiers under fire."

The effect of Von Steuben's instruction in the army teaches us a lesson that is well for us all to keep in mind, and that is that the people, however warlike in spirit and ambition, in natural courage and self-confidence, can be made at once by uniform and a military force. Until they learn drill and discipline they are a mob, and the theory that they can be made an army by the influence of a kindly, considerate, brave and accomplished soldier, as in the case of Von Steuben, is not the success of an independent command, but they were the preparation by persistent and tedious drilling and discipline.

"It seemed a thankless task for it had none of the spectacular in it; none of the glory of military triumph. It was the basic hard work without which such triumphs could not be won, but the results insured to the glory of others."

Asked No Reward.

"Steuben asked for no reward, except that if his services were satisfactory at the end of the war he should be recompensed for the sacrifices he had made in leaving his home and giving up his native rank and office."

"Washington, that calm savior, just judge of men, recognized fully the debt that the army and the people owed to Von Steuben, and it is gratifying to know that he gave his evidence as he said down his command in a letter full of expressions of gratitude to his comrade in arms, whose important aid at a critical juncture he fully appreciated."

"When Baron von Steuben came, to this country he found Germans who had preceded him and who, like him, had elected to make this their permanent home. Since his day millions of his countrymen have come to be Americans, and it adds great interest to celebration and emphasizes the propriety of the action of Congress in erecting this statue to know that the German race since the revolution has made so large a part of our population and played so prominent a part in the great growth and development of our country."

"It is particularly appropriate that there is present the German ambassador, the personal representative of the illustrious successor of Frederick the Great. The Germans who have come American citizens and their descendants may well take pride in this occasion, and in this work, which, modeled by the hand of an American of German descent, which commemorates the valued contribution made by a German soldier to the cause of American freedom."

CORNS WINNING OF THE FIELD

Easily the fifth crop in point of value is oats, which the year 1909, at $380,000,000, or twelve per cent above the average of the five preceding years. In quantity the oat crop this year is magnificent. For the second time in the history of this country the crop exceeds 1,000,000,000 bushels, the precise estimate standing at 1,096,000,000 bushels, or twenty-two per cent greater than the average of the five preceding years.

Next in order of value is the potato crop, which has been exceeded only in two or three former years. With the exception of the crop of 1909, which was in a degree an overproduction, the crop of this year is the largest ever grown in this country. The preliminary estimate of the department is 228,727,000 bushels, or eight per cent above the average of the preceding five years.

Beet Sugar.
Beet sugar production in 1910 will about equal that of 1909, say 512,000 short tons. Its factory value is reckoned at $51,000,000, and the factory value of cane sugar at about $28,000,000, an amount which has been exceeded in four years.

If prospects are realized, the entire sugar crop of factory production, beet and cane combined, will be $59,000,000 short tons, or a production that has been exceeded in only one year, 1909. In factory value the two sugar crops will equal about $79,000,000; and if to this be added the value of molasses, syrup, beet pulp, and sorghum and maple products, the combined value is about $87,000,000.

The tobacco crop has slightly exceeded the production of the record year, 1909, and its 267,000,000 pounds, twenty-six per cent above the average production of the five preceding years. Its value will be about $95,000,000, or about the same as that of the crop of 1909, and fully $20,000,000 more than any tobacco crop antedating that year. Barley has hardly maintained the average production of the preceding five years, the crop of this year being 158,125,000 bushels, but its value, $100,000,000, is sixteen per cent above the five-year average.

The production is far below that of recent years on account of a severe drought, the preliminary estimate being 15,056,000 bushels, but the price of last year soared to $2.50 per bushel, so that the value of the entire crop is about $22,000,000, an amount which was exceeded only in 1909.

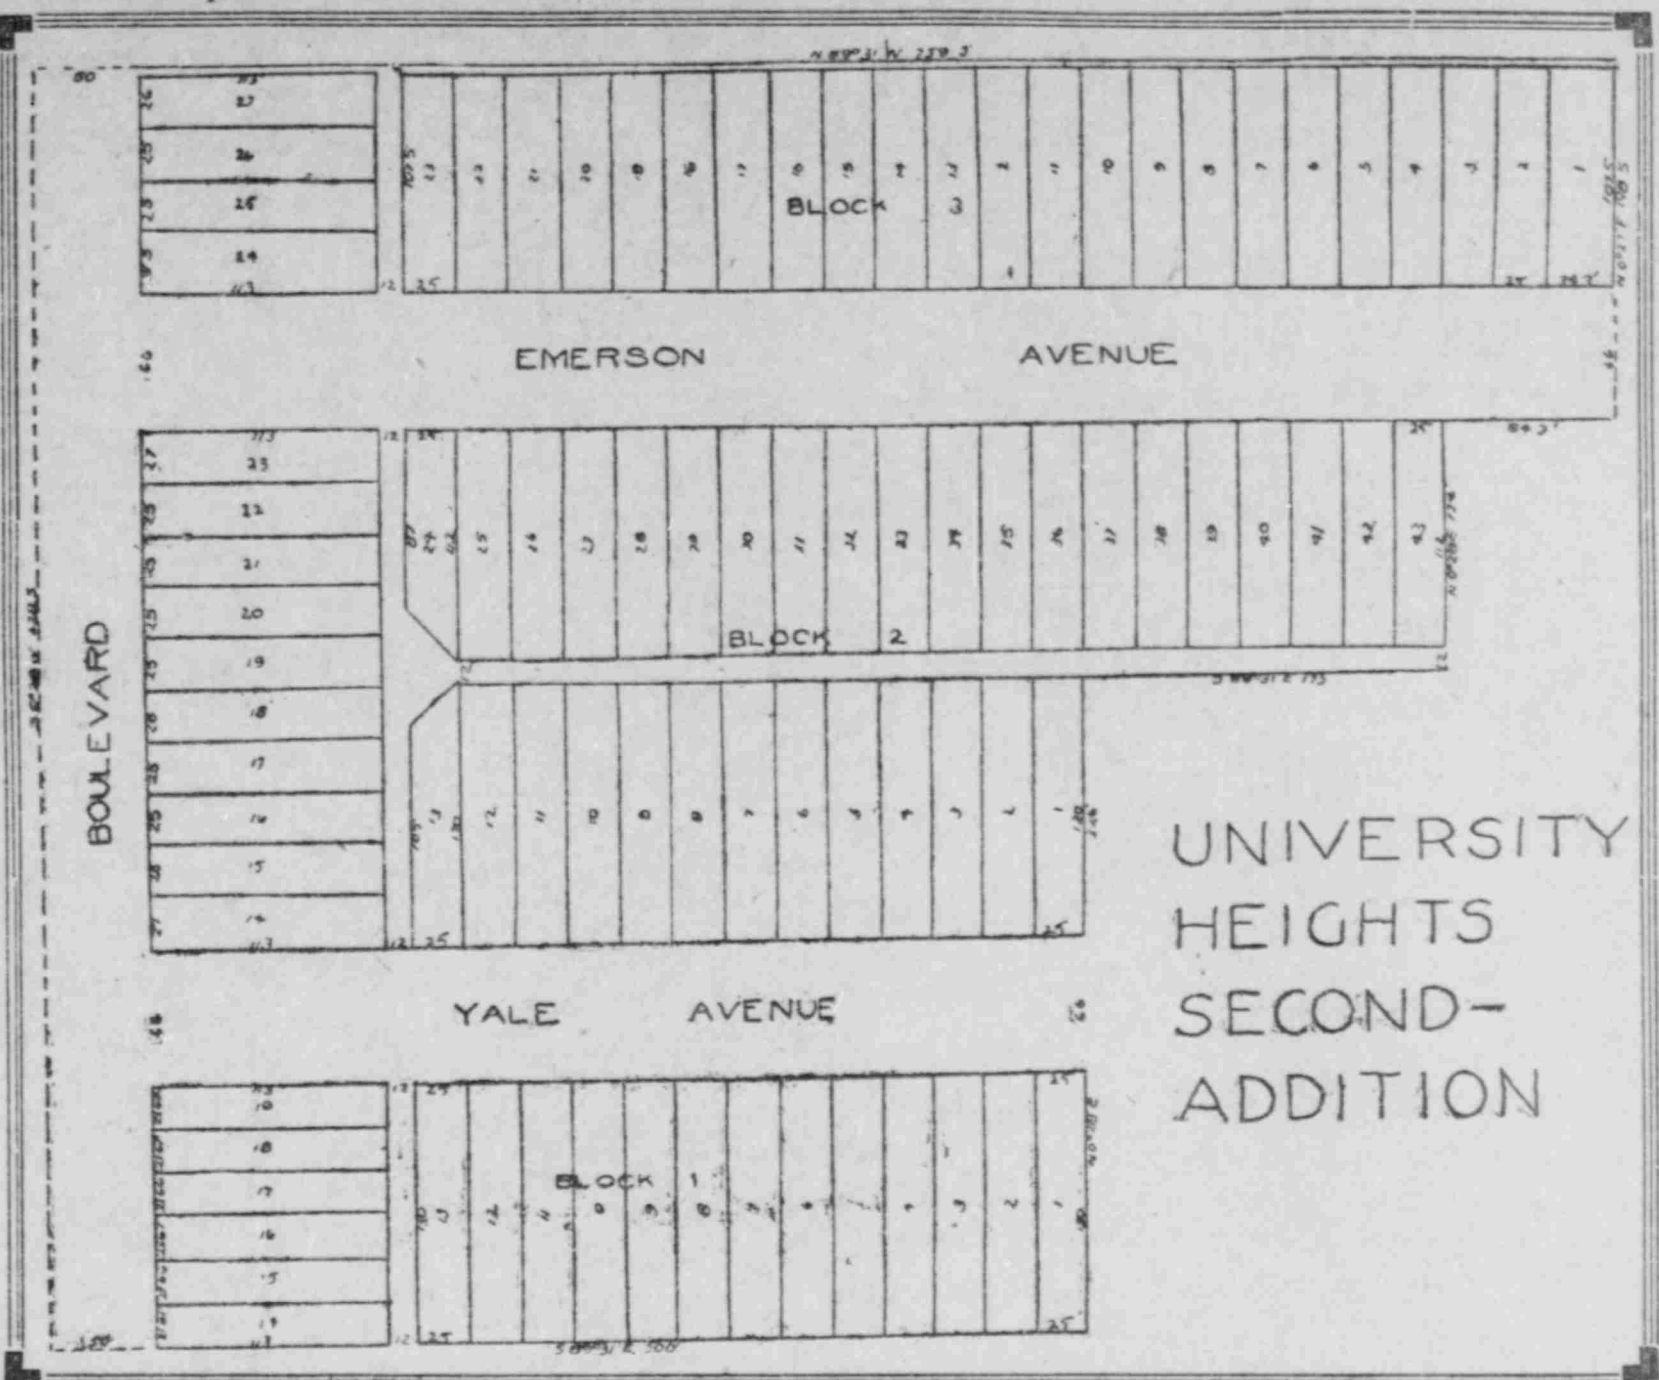

Rye is one of the steady crops, both in quantity and in value; the production of 32,088,000 bushels this year being worth at the farm about $25,000,000.

Rice production in 1910 remained substantially at the figure of 1909, or a little over 1,000,000,000 pounds of rough rice. No year previous to 1909 produced as large a crop; it exceeds the average of the previous five years by Messenger Arrested.—E. E. Lanning, a messenger boy, was arrested last night by Patrolman Horace Heath charged with the larceny of a bicycle from Max London, a collector of 45 South West Temple street. The latter identified the bicycle as it was being ridden by Lanning, although it has been painted black and had new handlebars. The numerical identification was later established, and Lanning was locked up in the city jail.

Groceries Stolen.—A quantity of groceries, estimated to be worth $50, was stolen from the Will Platte grocery, 875 South First West street, in a burglary early yesterday morning. Transportation for Indian, but Noble Redskin Vanishes LOST, strayed or stolen, one Indian, answering to the name of Bird. Finder will relieve the federal authorities of a bundle of worries by returning same to the office of United States Marshal James H. Anderson, in the federal building.

This is not a wooden Indian, such as adorns the entrances to cigar stores, but a real, sure enough live Indian, who was left stranded in Salt Lake, when the United States grand jury failed to bring an indictment against him.

Indian Bird was arrested several months ago on the Shewell Indian reservation charged with an assault on a girl. He was lodged in the Salt Lake county jail to await the action of the grand jury. The jury failed to bring in a grand indictment, and he was released. There was no one to take him back in the way that he had come, with the result that he was left a stranger in a strange land, with only $5 in change.

The local authorities petitioned the Indian department at Washington to provide money to send him back to his tribe. Bird paid his respects at the federal building until day before yesterday. A communication received from the Indian department yesterday provides for his expenses to the sunny south, but now the local authorities have no Indian to send back. Whether or not he has taken to the road, as is employed by other nationalities of the down and out, or not, is the question that is now confronting the authorities.

WARRANT IS ISSUED.
Charges of obtaining money under false pretenses are contained in a complaint issued yesterday from the county attorney's office against H. H. McDonald, a local newspaper man. Harold King, a cigar store clerk, caused the complaint. He charges that McDonald got $12.50 from him by means of a worthless check on the Merchants National bank of this city.

NOON LUNCHEON.

Baldheaded Club Being Organized in Western City

Perhaps this report is a joke, but this, "We didn't use Parisian Sage."

In France baldheads are few because men understand how to care for the hair. Parisian Sage quickly destroys the dandruff germ that causes falling hair and baldness. It is a hair grower and invigorator that is guaranteed by Schramm-Johnson, Druggists.

The writer would suggest that some of the members carry banners with inscriptions of such a character as to warn those who still have hair, that baldness is unnecessary; that in nearly every case it is the result of carelessness.

Banners inscribed as follows would be appropriate:

"We let the dandruff germ do it."

"The time to save the hair is when you have hair to save."

"When we were young, the dandruff germ worked every blessed minute. They dug our hair out by the roots, and now we aren't in it."

The best banner of all would be who want to have hair full of life and luster will not be disappointed in Parisian Sage. It is a delightful refreshing hair dressing not sticky or greasy.

A large bottle costs 50 cents at Schramm-Johnson, Druggists, five stores, and drugists everywhere. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid by the American makers, Groux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
